Carmel Valley Masterplan

Committee "gets to work"

"This is the kind of thing we've been trying to do all along."

That was what Monterey County Planning Commissioner Bill Peters said at the end of Thursday's Carmel Valley Masterplan Committee meeting. The two and a half hour meeting at Carmel Valley Manor dealt mainly with the basic chores of research in the valley, being done in preparation for the masterplan revision.

The real revision work, according to Peters, is being done in the subcommittee level. Reports of those committees will begin in May with Hazards and part of the Water Waste Management report and will conclude in October with a report on Growth Management.

Peters applauded the committee's work in light of "all the flack" received by local community members at previous meetings. He predicted that the real work of the committee could now proceed — that of determining the valley's limits and future direction.

New member Hershel Peak, a former diplomat, was installed on the committee, replacing Phyllis Freeman who moved out of the valley.

Goals

Although the committee admitted they were long overdue, they discussed and approved "Goals for Carmel Valley" as drawn up by members William Cranston, Robert Greenwood and Mary Ann Mathews. They are as follows:

Looking towards the next 10 or 15 years and beyond in the life of the Valley, we are concerned about several undesirable trends which were unsuspected at the time of the 1960 Masterplan. These include problems related to:

Water supply and water quality;

Sewage systems;

Loss of farming and other rural land uses;

Degradation of the Carmel River as an esthetic and recreational element;

Building on the floodplain;

Impairment of natural views;

Loss of recreational opportunities.

The basic task facing the Masterplan Study Committee, as we see it, is the formulation of a plan to determine the amount of development the Valley can support in the next 10-15 years without aggravating these problems. The planner's role is no longer simply to predict growth and expand facilities to meet it; rather it is to determine how much development can be supported economically, socially, and environmentally, and to devise means for rationally allocating the available space and resources.

Our awareness of the current problems, coupled with our own hopes for the future of the Valley, leads us to propose the following set of goals as a basis for such a plan.

1. Diversity, both physical and socio-economic.
2. Protection of natural resources and natural beauty.
3. Protection of the Carmel Valley aquifer.
4. Reduction of flood damage.
5. Carmel Valley Road to become a Scenic Highway.
6. Design control where necessary.

Description of Individual Goals

1. Diversity, both physical and socio-economic.

A good feature of Carmel Valley is the variety of natural environments (woodland, floodplain, canyon, etc.) found in close association, and with them a wide variety of human activities (nurseries, golf courses, farms, retirement homes, music academy, etc.). Such diversity in a small area is uncommon, and we believe it important for the social health of the community that it be maintained and encouraged.

The Valley should not be dominated by, or dependent upon, any one activity, whether it be tourist facilities, retirement homes, or planned residential communities. Small farming and ranching operations may be no longer economic in themselves, but as supplementary activities they remain an essential part of our community life. Ways must be found so that lower-income people can continue to live and work in the Valley. A one-class community is undesirable and probably unlawful.

2. Protection of natural resources and natural beauty.

This is an obvious goal, but its elements are worth restating. The Carmel River, once a scenic, recreational, and fish-and-wildlife resource, needs to be restored as much as is feasible. Native vegetation, bird and animal life, space for riding and hiking, scenic views, clean air, and silence are all assets, just as much as libraries and banks; once lost, they can hardly be replaced. Our tax laws are the chief enemy of these resources, and since we cannot change the tax laws at the county level, other measures must be devised.

The 1960 Plan urged the formation of two parks. Garland Park is now a reality. The possibility of other parks needs to be examined.

3. Protection of the Carmel Valley Aquifer and the free flow of Carmel River and its tributaries.

In the next decade the entire Peninsula will depend increasingly upon the groundwater resources of the Carmel Valley aquifer. Any "new" source of water is ten years or more away and will require massive funding.

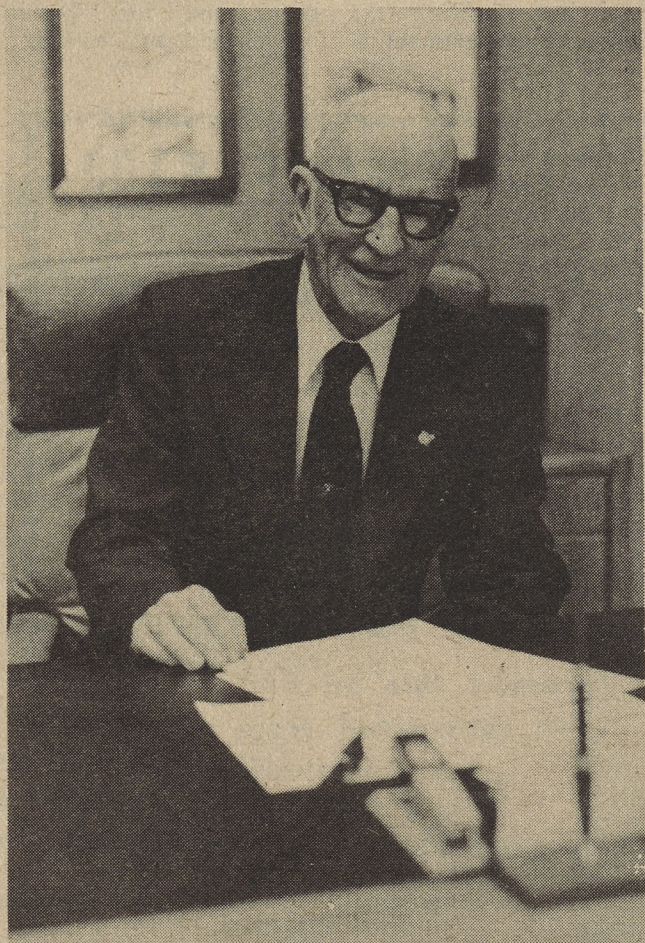

Threats to the aquifer are both external and internal. External, because additional export of water by Cal-Am (consequent upon the Canada de la Segunda project) will further lower the water table in dry seasons with consequent damage to vegetation and wildlife.

Internal, because of proliferation of private wells within the Valley, and because the increase of population and septic tanks heightens the risk of contaminating the aquifer. Local sewage plants, when built, will face the problem of whether to export their effluent, taking even more water out of the Valley, or whether to treat it to a level acceptable for recharge into the soil.

More residential or commercial development will decrease the areas available for recharge of the aquifer, while causing increased runoff, erosion, and non-point pollution.

4. Reduction of flood damage.

Development has naturally been attracted to the floodplain of the Carmel River because of ease of construction and the presence of fertile soil. Increased density on the floodplain means that future floods will cause far more damage than did old-time floods. It is standard practice to reserve floodplains for non-structural uses (agriculture, sports fields, parks, etc.) and Federal flood insurance is available to communities

The most suitable and least environmentally damaging sites for further development are in the foothills and terraces (flat areas) which parallel the Valley floor.

5. Carmel Valley Road to become a Scenic Highway.

The Planning Department's long-standing suggestion for Scenic Highway status for Carmel Valley Road should be implemented. Traffic on the Valley road will depend not only on our Masterplan, but also on developments in the Cachagua area. Scenic Highway designation will ensure design control and protection of the remaining natural beauty along this road, while permitting necessary improvements for the safety of those who live, drive, and bicycle along it.

6. Design control where necessary.

To preserve the beauty of the Valley, design control should be instituted for all commercial structures and all multiple dwellings. For single-family homes, it should be considered in all visually-critical areas of the Valley.

CVPOA

Mello to speak

Legislative prospects for property tax reform and protection of agricultural land from subdivision development will be among the subjects to be discussed by Assemblyman Henry Mello at the CVPOA quarterly meeting at 8 p.m. Thursday, April 28, in the Multipurpose Room at Tularecito School.

Assemblyman Mello, who represents about two-thirds of Carmel Valley in the State Assembly, is Vice Chairman of the Assembly Committee on Revenue and Taxation, and is also a member of the Committee on Resources, Land Use, and Energy and the Local Government Committee. In addition, he was appointed earlier this year by the Speaker of the Assembly to a special drought committee, and has been meeting on a weekly basis with state agencies on drought problems.

Henry Mello is from Watsonville, with an agricultural background, and served as a Santa Cruz County Supervisor for eight years before being elected to the legislature last November. He was active in coastal and agricultural legislation and the environment long before many others became interested in these subjects.

Mello prefers to speak briefly and then devote more time to questions and answers. Members and the general public are urged to bring their questions to the meeting and participate in this CVPOA "town meeting."

A total of $425 in cash and prizes will be awarded in five categories: portraits, scenics, Peninsula life, open and junior entries. First place winners will receive $25 cash, a $25 gift certificate from the category sponsor, and engraved plaques. Second place winners will receive a $15 gift certificate. All contest winners, including honorable mentions, will receive winner's certificates.

A special Sweepstakes Award will be given for the Best of Show entry. This award carries a $100 cash prize.

Winning entries will be published in a special edition of the Carmel Pine Cone at the end of May and also will go on exhibit for six to eight weeks at local banks and contest sponsors.

Amateur photographers who are residents of the Monterey Peninsula are eligible to enter the contest. Pine Cone employees and their immediate families are not eligible. An amateur is defined as any person who has not relied upon photography as a major source of income.

All entries must be received at the Pine Cone office, Dolores between 7th and 8th, (P.O. Box G-1) by 5 p.m. Friday, May 13. Each entry must be mounted, no larger than 18 x 24 inches total size, and accompanied by an official entry form. Model releases must be included where necessary.

Judges for the contest will be local professional photographers including Dick Garrod, Henry Gilpin and George Short. Their decisions will be based on print quality, originality, composition, technique and overall impact.

Photographers may enter up to two photos in each category for which they are eligible. Categories are described as follows:

Portrait — any subject including animals.

Scenics — any subject matter.

Peninsula Life — any subject depicting life on the Monterey Peninsula.

Open — any photo including action shots, special effects and unusual photography not easily placed in the four other categories.

Junior — any type of photograph from photographers under the age of 18.

In the event less than 10 entries are received in any one category, that category will be eliminated and entries will be placed in the Open classification.

Entry forms and a list of contest rules are available at the Pine Cone office.

Fire danger

To the residents of Carmel Valley Fire Protection District:

Once again, we are entering our yearly fire season and, with the little amount of rain this past winter (10.56 inches to date), it promises to be a dry summer. As in the past two years, the California Department of Forestry will be conducting inspections of Carmel Valley residential property and citations will be issued for violators. We urge your cooperation and hope you will all try to safeguard your homes and property by cleaning dried brush, tall grass and tree limbs overhanging and building.

There is no more open burning allowed until December 1, 1977, so other disposal methods must be employed.

Last summer, we made it through the fire season without any major wildfires, due to fire inspections and a conscientious community awareness of the fire danger we are faced with. We are sure that the efforts of the Fire Department and the community in our fire safety program will pay off once again this year.

If there are any questions, don't hesitate to call us at 659-2021. (659-2221 Emergency only.) Alexander A. Collins Jr., Fire Chief, Carmel Valley Fire Department

CUSD

Contract proposal hearing

Suppose they gave a public hearing and no one came.

That's the gist of what happened at Tuesday night's CUSD Board meeting. The hearing involved the contract proposal submitted by the Association of Carmel Teachers for 1977-78. The proposed contract has been available to the public through the Superintendent's Office since April 12, 1977.

But no one in the sparsely attended audience offered a yea or nay. The Board later went into executive session to discuss the proposed teacher's contract. It is supposed they had more to say than the audience.

The bartering session between Board and teachers could last well into the summer dependent on the scope of contract disagreements. The extent of contract proposal differences was not known at press time.

In other actions the board: —approved the employment of a new music teacher, Joseph J. Nokes, at Tularcitos, Carmelo and Middle Schools, at a salary of $11,154.00.

—reappointed Dan Yurkovich as representative for the Monterey Peninsula

Regional Adult and Vocational Education Council for a two year term.

—accepted a delineation of function agreement that would prevent unnecessary duplication of programs and courses in Monterey Peninsula schools.

—set May 24 as a tentative date when the school budget would be discussed.

—rescheduled from May 5 to May 11 a study session where board members will review the Western Association of Schools and Colleges (WASC) report on the high school

The next regular board meeting will be held May 10, 7:30 p.m. at the Carmel Middle School Library.

You come out in the morning ready to ride and there's Backyard Pet just standing listlessly in his corral. His head is down. His eyes are dull. He isn't snorting around begging for a second breakfast like usual.

Is he sick? Is he just taking a morning nap? Is he just faking it, clever rotten horse! so he won't be taken out for a ride? How can you tell?

One place to start is by taking his temperature. This is something every pet owner should be able to do for his pet, just as new mommies learn to do for their babies. Yes, you're quite right — the thermometer does not go into the mouth. Au contraire... Which is French for "try the other end."

Veterinary thermometers are not expensive. A human thermometer can also be used if it's the stubby kind and if it has a loop at the top for tying a string onto it.

We always tie a string onto the thermometer that is used to take a horse's temperature because of the danger of losing it in the horse. That could add up to a real veterinary bill.

A horse's temperature is taken rectally and normal readings are 100 to 101.6 degrees Fahrenheit. Before use, shake the thermometer down below normal ranges with several downward snapping motions of the wrist and lubricate it with a little Vaseline or water. Move the horse's tail to one side and insert the thermometer within half an inch of the end, leaving it for two minutes.

After removing the thermometer, wipe it clean with a tissue or a few hairs of the horse's tail and read it by rotating it in your fingers until the mercury column becomes clearly visible on the scale. The hardest part is reading the wretched thing.

Now, while you're standing there holding the horse's tail, you can take his pulse. Yes, yes, you've seen other people taking the pulse by feeling the maxillary artery on the underside of the jaw. But the pulse is easily taken in the tail also.

Using the first and middle fingers rather than the thumb, (that's pointer and tall man, kiddos), locate the groove in the middle of the fleshy underside of the tailbone. With a very light pressure feel the pulse for several beats before you begin measuring it. Use a watch with a second hand on it. Normal pulse rate for the horse is thirty six to forty beats per minute.

By the way, endurance riders and other horsemen interested in fit horses measure fitness by counting pulse and respiration rates while the horse works and while he rests. Fitness is calculated by how quickly the pulse and respiration rate return to normal during rest after work. That's an improvement over by guess and by golly and by how much a horse sweats on a day which may be cold or hot.

Respiration is recorded simply by watching the flanks go in and out as the horse breathes. Normal respiration for the horse is twelve to eighteen breaths per minute at rest.

Now that you know how to take temperature, pulse and respiration readings, you can call them by their initials. That's the way us folks do it. We take TPR's.

Since your horse depends on you for his daily care and exercise, you should be the first to detect any abnormal behavior or symptoms of illness or injury. Your normal grooming procedure will uncover even the most obscure injury. TPR will give you information about his general health.

It takes only a little practice and familiarity with the horse-as-he-should-be, then you can easily tell: Get on the phone to the vet, or get on that Backyard Pet.

Red Cross Chairman

Sherwood Mark, retired USAF Colonel, has replaced Donald Nelson as Carmel-by-the-Sea American National Red Cross chapter chairman. Nelson, who is leaving the area, had been chairman from 1969 to 1972, and again in 1976. He announced that it was with deep regret that he had to resign from the Board of Directors and expressed his thanks to everyone for the cooperation and friendship which had been given to him.

Mark, who is not new to the chapter, was active in the 1976 Members and Fund Campaign and has been serving on the Board of Directors. For 18 years he photographed the Christmas shows of Bob Hope traveling around the world with the rest of this famous group, from Seoul, Korea in 1950 to a White House dinner in 1969. Mark resides with his wife in Carmel Valley.

Leonard I. Brown, who was known as "Charlie" long before Schulz started his cartoon strip, has assumed an executive volunteer slot with the chapter as Chairman of Volunteers.

IT'S GOING TO BE A LONG, DRY, EXPENSIVE SUMMER.

WHAT HAS THE DROUGHT DONE TO POWER SUPPLIES?

The drought is already having its effect on PG&E's ability to generate electric power this year. Here are the facts:

In a normal year, much of PG&E's electricity is generated by water power. The drought has reduced our hydroelectric generating capacity to less than half of normal. By summer, we expect our reservoirs to be at all-time lows. Any chance of getting enough rain or snow to solve the problem just about disappeared by mid-March.

Last year was also a drought year. But we were able to buy large amounts of hydroelectric power from the Pacific Northwest. This year we can't. Water conditions there are so far below normal that a 10% cutback in power usage has been ordered. So no power at all is available to us from that source this year.

Our Diablo Canyon Nuclear Plant has the capacity to fill the gap. But it is not in operation because it is still in the process of being licensed.

To make up for the missing hydro power this year, we are working our steam-electric generating plants (fueled mostly by oil) overtime. We are also buying power from Southern California and Nevada utilities. The amounts available may or may not be enough to meet all our customers' demands during peak periods in coming months. If there is not enough power to go around, our customers will be asked to cut back their use even more than now. Power shortages that require actual power cutoffs to groups of customers will occur only if voluntary cutbacks fail to work. Or if there is a breakdown of major steam-electric generating equipment. (Such breakdowns, unfortunately, are more apt to happen when generating equipment works overtime, as now.)

WHAT ABOUT THE COSTS TO YOU?

With hydroelectric capacity sharply reduced, it takes more oil to run our steam-electric generating plants. This oil, mostly imported, costs almost $15 a barrel. We will need to burn at least 50 million barrels of it this year—compared to less than 27 million last year. And the more oil we burn, the more electricity will cost.

WHAT CAN YOU DO?

If ever the need to conserve energy were clear, it is now. Saving kilowatt hours not only helps relieve the energy shortage, it also saves you real money. Just call or visit your nearest PG&E office. We will provide you with information on how you can cut down on your use of electricity without disrupting your home or business.

PG&E
Save energy. You'll save money, too.

Kaminske honored

Mrs. Jeanelle Kaminske, owner of Carmel & Valley Realty, at 26535 Carmel Rancho Blvd., has received the distinction of being named in the national publication, "Who's Who in Creative Real Estate," as a Senior Listee.

"At present there are few real estate brokers in the United States who qualify to the senior level of "Who's Who in Creative Real Estate." To have that status, Jeanelle had to meet the stringent educational requirements of at least ten advanced seminars in specified areas of real estate," says William R. Broadbent, President of Who's Who in Creative Real Estate, Inc., the publishers.

Jeanelle feels that since real estate is usually the most important investment a person ever makes, it is imperative that thorough plans be made so that her clients may receive the maximum benefits from ownership of property. "In order for a realtor to assist a client in making a wise decision, there must be adequate knowledge of real estate law, of best financing techniques, and of taxation requirements. For example, two separate clients came to me last week searching for almost the same benefits in a home. They plan to rent the home until retirement (3 years), and then live in the house for ten years or longer beginning in 1980. Because of their different annual incomes (tax bracket) the financing on their homes will be structured entirely differently."

As a resident of Carmel Valley for 15 years, Jeanelle lives with her husband Roy and three children on Country Club Drive. "Roy is the one who should get all the credit for the listing in 'Who's Who,' says Jeanelle, "because I never would have made it if he weren't so nice about the unpredictable dinner schedules and my dashing off to schools for several years."

Telephone workers

Four Pacific Telephone employees who live in Carmel and Carmel Valley celebrated a total of 90 years of service with Ma Bell at a service award dinner-dance on April 21 at the Moose Lodge.

Topping the foursome was Gil Selfridge with 35 years, followed by Dorothy Lillard, 30 years, Eileen Kapavik, 15 years, and Mary Ricker, 10 years.

A total of 44 PT&T employees were honored that night for their combined total of 725 years of phone service to Monterey Peninsula residents.

Coordinating the event was Berna Stillwell, PT&T operator services manager.

Quail Lodge

The Quail Lodge is "one of the best hotels in the country," according to the just published 1977 Mobil Travel Guide. The hotel has received the prestigious Five-Star Award, the highest rating Mobil Travel Guide bestows. This year, only 10 hotels in the U.S. received this coveted rating.

The Five-Star rating is awarded after completion of detailed inspections by representatives of an independent research firm, and after careful consideration by special consultants. In addition, "feedback" from Mobil Travel Guide readers who have stayed at the Quail Lodge is also evaluated. These combined reports are then studied by the research firm that also determines the actual ratings.

Each hotel in the Guide is inspected during the twelve months prior to publication.

Five stars means the best, and a hotel must reflect this rating on more than 100 different inspection points. Spaciously tastefully-appointed rooms and public areas, impeccable housekeeping and maintenance staffs, and an overall reputation for superb service and attentive management are among the major criteria sought by the field inspectors.

The Mobil Travel Guide is the product of months of intensive annual research. The rating each hotel, motel or resort receives is based on strict standards and requirements. 20,000 establishments are listed in the Guide.

This rating is only given after careful study and detailed inspections by trained field representatives, combined with experiences of Mobil Travel Guide readers, and results of anonymous visits by special consultants.

For an establishment to join the elite "Five-Star club" it must achieve excellence in personal service, gracious decor and hospitable atmosphere.
